

themselves all men of haire, they cal themselves Saltiers, and they haue a Dance, which the Wenches say is a gal-ly-maufrey of Gambols, because they are not in't : but they themselves are o'th'minde (if it bee not too rough for some, that know little but bowling) it will please plentifully.

Shep. Away : Wee'l none on't ; heere has beene too much homely foolery already. I know (Sir) wee wearie you.

Pol. You wearie those that refresh vs : pray let's see these foure-threes of Heardsmen.

Ser. One three of them, by their owne report (Sir,) hath danc'd before the King : and not the worst of the three, but iumpes twelue foote and a halfe by th'squire.

Shep. Leauce your prating, since these good men are pleas'd, let them come in : but quickly now.

Ser. Way, they stay at doore Sir.

Heere a Dance of twelue Satyres.

Pol. O Father, you'l know more of that heereafter : Is it not too farre gone ? 'Tis time to part them, He's simple, and tels much. How now (faire shepheard) Your heart is full of something, that do's take Your minde from feasting. Sooth, when I was yong, And handed lowe, as you do ; I was wont To load my Shee with knackes : I would haue ranfackt The Pedlers filken Treasury, and haue pow'd it To her acceptance : you haue let him go, And nothing marted with him. If your Lasse Interpretation should abuse, and call this Your lacke of loue, or bounty, you were straited For a reply at least, if you make a care Of happie holding her.

Flo. Old Sir, I know She prizes not such trifles as these are : The gifts she lookes from me, are packt and lockt Vp in my heart, which I haue giuen already, But not deliuer'd. O heere me breath my life Before this ancient Sir, whom (it should seeme) Hath sometime lou'd : I take thy hand, this hand, As soft as Doves downe, and as white as it, Or Ethiopians tooth, or the fan'd snow, that's bolted By th' Northerne blasts, twice ore.

Pol. What follows this ? How prettily th' yong Swaine seemes to wash The hand, was faire before ? I haue put you out, But to your protestation : Let me heare What you professe.

Flo. Do, and be witnesse too't.

Pol. And this my neighbour too ?

Flo. And he, and more

Then he, and men : the earth, the heauens, and all ; That were I crown'd the most Imperiall Monarch Thereof most worthy : were I the fayrest youth That euer made eye swerue, had force and knowledge More then was euer mans, I would not prize them Without her Loue ; for her, employ them all, Commend them, and condemne them to her seruice, Or to their owne perdition.

Pol. Fairly offer'd.

Cam. This shewes a sound affection.

Shep. But my daughter,

Say you the like to him.

Per. I cannot speake

So well, (nothing so well) no, nor meane better By th' patterne of mine owne thoughts, I cut out The puritie of his.

Shep. Take hands, a bargain ; And friends vnknowne, you shall beare witnesse to't : I giue my daughter to him, and will make Her Portion, equall his.

Flo. O, that must bee I th' Vertue of your daughter : One being dead, I shall haue more then you can dreame of yet, Enough then for your wonder : but come-on, Contract vs fore these Witnesse.

Shep. Come, your hand :

And daughter, yours.

Pol. Soft Swaine a-while, beseech you,

Haue you a Father ?

Flo. I haue : but what of him ?

Pol. Knowes he of this ?

Flo. He neither do's, nor shall.

Pol. Me-thinks a Father,

Is at the Nuptiall of his soane, a guest That best becomes the Table : Pray you once more Is not your Father growne incapable Of reasonable affayres ? Is he not stupid With Age, and altring Rheumes ? Can he speake ? heare ? Know man, from man ? Dispute his owne estate ? Lies he not bed-rid ? And againe, do's nothing But what he did, being childish ?

Flo. No good Sir : He has his health, and ampler strength indeede Then most haue of his age.

Pol. By my white beard, You offer him (if this be so) a wrong Something vnfilliall : Reason my sonne Should choofe himselfe a wife, but as good reason The Father (all whose ioy is nothing else But faire posterity) should hold some counsaile In such a businesse.

Flo. I yeeld all this ;

But for some other reasons (my graue Sir) Which 'tis not fit you know, I not acquaint My Father of this businesse.

Pol. Let him know't.

Flo. He shall not.

Pol. Prethee let him.

Flo. No, he must not.

Shep. Let him (my sonne) he shall not need to greeue At knowing of thy choice.

Flo. Come, come, he must not :

Marke our Contract.

Pol. Marke your diuorce (yong sir) Whom sonne I dare not call : Thou art too base To be acknowledge. Thou a Scepters heire, That thus affects a sheepe-hooke ? Thou, old Traitor, I am sorry, that by hanging thee, I can but shorten thy life one weeke. And thou, fresh peece Of excellent Witchcraft, whom of force must know The royall Foole-thou coap't with.

Shep. Oh my heart.

Pol. He haue thy beauty scratcht with briars & made More homely then thy state. For thee (fond boy) If I may euer know thou dost but sigh, That thou no more shalt neuer see this knacke (as neuer I meane thou shalt) wee'l barre thee from succession, Not hold thee of our blood, no not our Kin, Farre then Deniall off : (marke thou my words) Follow vs to the Court. Thou Churle, for this time (Though full of our displeasure) yet we free thee From the dead blow of it. And you Enchantment, Wat.

Worthy enough a Heardsmen : yea him too, That makes himselfe (but for our Honor therein) Vnworthy thee. If euer henceforth, thou These rurall Latches, to his entrance open, Or hope his body more, with thy embraces, I will deuise a death, as cruell for thee As thou art tender to't.

Perd. Euen heere vndone :

I was not much a-fear'd : for once, or twice I was about to speake, and tell him plainly, The selfe same Sun, that shines vpon his Court, Hides not his visage from our Cottage, but Lookes on alike. Wilt please you (Sir) be gone ? I told you what would come of this : Beseech you Of your owne state take care : This dreame of mine Being now awake, Ile Queene it no inch farther, But milke my Ewes, and weepe.

Cam. Why how now Father,

Speake ere thou dyest.

Shep. I cannot speake, nor thinke, Nor dare to know, that which I know : O Sir, You haue vndone a man of fourescore three, That thought to fill his graue in quiet : yea, To dye vpon the bed my father dy'de, To lye close by his honest bones ; but now Some Hangman must put on my shrowd, and lay me Where no Priest shouds in dust. Oh cursed wretch, That knew't this was the Prince, and wouldst adventure To mingle faith with him. Vndone, vndone : If I might dye within this houre, I haue liu'd To die when I desire.

Flo. Why looke you so vpon me ? I am but sorry, not afraid : delaid, But nothing alred : What I was, I am : More straining on, for plucking backe ; not following My leaue vvolingly.

Cam. Gracious my Lord, You know my Fathers temper : at this time He will allow no speech : (which I do ghesse You do not purpose to him) and as hardly Will he endure your sight, as yet I feare ; Then till the fury of his Highnesse settle Come not before him.

Flo. I not purpose it :

I thinke Camillo.

Cam. Euen he, my Lord.

Per. How often haue I told you 'twould be thus ? How often said my dignity would last But till 'twere knowne ?

Flo. It cannot faile, but by The violation of my faith, and then Let Nature crush the sides o'th earth together, And marre the seeds within. Lift vp thy lookes : From my succession wipe me (Father) I Am heyre to my affection.

Cam. Be aduise'd.

Flo. I am : and by my fancie, if my Reason Will thereto be obedient : I haue reason : If not, my senses better pleas'd with madnesse, Do bid it welcome.

Cam. This is desperate (sir.)

Flo. So call it : but it do's fulfill my vow :

I needs must thinke it honesty. Camillo, Not for Bohemia, nor the pompe that may Be therat gleaned : for all the Sun sees, or The close earth wombes, or the profound seas, hides

Exit.

In vnknowne fadomes, will I To this my faire belou'd : Then As you haue euer bin my Father When he shall misse me, as (in To see him any more) cast your Vpon his passion : Let my selfe Tug for the time to come. Th And so deliuer, I am put to Sea With her, who heere I cannot And most opportune to her nee A Vessell rides fast by, but not For this designe. What course Shall nothing benefit your kno Concerne me the reporting.

Cam. O my Lord,

I would your spirit were easer Or stronger for your neede.

Flo. Heareke Perdita,

Ile heare you by and by.

Cam. Hee's irremouable, Resolu'd for flight : Now were His going, I could frame to fe Saue him from danger, do him Purchase the fight againe of de And that vnhappy King, my M I so much thirst to see.

Flo. Now good Camillo, I am so fraught with curious b I leaue out ceremony.

Cam. Sir, I thinke

You haue heard of my poore so That I haue borne your Father

Flo. Very nobly

Haue you deseru'd : It is my Fa To speake your deeds : not litt To haue them recompenc'd, as

Cam. Well (my Lord)

If you may please to thinke I And through him, what's nee Your gracious selfe ; embrace If your more ponderous and s May suffer alteration. On mi

Ile point you where you shall As shall become your Highne Enioy your Mistis ; from the There's no disunction to be r

(As heauens forefend) your ru And with my best endeouers, Your discontenting Father, s And bring him vp to liking.

Flo. How Camillo

May this (almost a miracle) b That I may call thee something And after that trust to thee.

Cam. Haue you thought A place whereto you'l go ?

Flo. Not any yet :

But as th'vntought-on accio To what we wilde do, so w Our selues to be the slaues of

Of euery winde that blowes.

Cam. Then list to me :

This folloves, if you will not But vndergo this flight ; mak And there present your selfe, (For so I see she must be) for
